

The diploma thesis deals with the application of the RWCT programme in the first grade at a primary school. It deals with the modification of three basic methods of this programme so that they will be useful for the lowest grade at a primary school.

Particular methods are analysed from these points of view: the aims and the key competences that are mentioned in the RVP. The heart of the thesis is in one-year long research in the first grade where these methods were practiced with children. The other options of using the RWCT programme are discussed marginally and superficially.
